Help with Tornado Relief

A lot of people are hurting after the rash of tornadoes in Oklahoma – and the season is only beginning. The good news is that you can help! Adventist Community Services Disaster Relief (ACS-DR) is there to help provide desperately needed items and support as people work to pick up their lives. But ACS needs your help. There are several ways to make a donation to Adventist Community Services. Call 1-800-381-7171 to make a donation or visit www.communityservices.org.

SOULS Northwest

The Northwest Mission Institute is expanding its original six-month training program to two years and has changed its name to SOULS Northwest. This North Pacific Union Conference institute will be affiliated with the successful SOULS West training center, operated by the Pacific Union Conference. Extending the training program makes it possible for SOULS Northwest to train students who will work with the literature ministries departments of the local conferences within the NPUC as leaders for their Youth Rush summer literature evangelism programs. The existing six-month program will still be offered for adults past college age with experience in the workforce, as well as Walla Walla University degree-seeking students. Two certificates will continue to be offered to students: Outreach Leadership and Literature Ministries Leadership. More information can be found at www.missioninstitute.org.
