

The Blueprint

The Story of Adventist Education

Following our fellowship meal today we are excited to be able to bring you The BLUEPRINT, Martin Doblmeier's warm and thoughtful look at Adventist Education across North America, which is just beginning to be rolled out and shown on PBS stations across the United States.

As an independent film producer, Martin is free to tell the stories he finds in his own distinctive way. Using what he has learned about Seventh-day Adventists over the past several years, Martin's journey to understanding Adventist Education took him to some unique and surprising places:

- To an urban school in Brooklyn, where a young boy finds his self-confidence through a teacher who won't let him slip through the cracks.
- To a one-room school that is struggling to stay open.
- To schools that are focused on community outreach – in their neighborhoods and overseas.
- To Holbrook Indian School, where the scholastic challenges are meeting the circumstances of need.

There is not one story in The BLUEPRINT that you will not enjoy.

Thank you for your support of Adventist Education here in the Rockwood Community. Please take some special time today to pray for our students, teachers and schools. If you have a school aged child or grandchild, if you know someone with school aged children, or if you just want to be inspired – please plan to join us from 1:30-2:30 pm today for The Blueprint!
