The Pancake Church

It all started one Sabbath morning, with a teen crying behind a locked bedroom door. Gently knocking on her daughter's door, Mrs. Shin asked what was wrong. "I'm so sad," came the muffled response. "Sabbath is so sad. I don't want to go to church! There's no one my age." Mrs. Shin had noticed for some time that her 15-year-old daughter, Bo Hwa (BO-wah), wasn't happy. During the week, Bo Hwa was away at school with many friends, but at home she was the only teen in church.

Mother and daughter prayed together about the situation, and before long Mrs. Shin had a plan. Every weekday morning, she arose very early and made 2,000 hotteoks (HOE-tocks) – a popular sweet-filled Korean pancake. Mrs. Shin then took her hotteoks and set up shop directly across from the local high school.

All day Mrs. Shin sold hotteoks to the hungry students. But she did much more than that – she befriended them. "How's it going?" she asked. For many of her young customers, this was the first time someone had shown a genuine interest in them. Sensing her trustworthiness, the students began opening up to Mrs. Shin. Many were having a difficult time at school and home. Several came from broken homes or abusive situations. Some were living on their own.

As trust deepened, Mrs. Shin decided to take their friendship to the next level. "What are you doing on Saturday afternoon?" she asked her daily customers. "Nothing," was the usual response. "Would you like to come with me to visit some old people and cheer them up?" she asked.
