H.M.S. Richards Divinity School Receives 10-Year Re-Accreditation

In February, La Sierra University's H.M.S. Richards Divinity School received notification that it had been awarded a reaffirmation of its accreditation through March 31, 2028.

The Commission on Accrediting of The Association of Theological Schools in the United States and Canada, or ATS, in a board vote extended by 10 years the school's accreditation, which was first voted in February 2013.

The school also received approval to offer the full Master of Theological Studies degree through a satellite program at the offices of the Central California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists in Clovis, Calif. The cohort program was launched in Central California in June 2016 with a class of 25 pastors, Bible teachers, and chaplains. Currently 23 students are enrolled.
