

NW Adventists Give Nearly $500K to Paradise Efforts

After the devastating wild fire in early November 2018 that destroyed the town of Paradise, Calif., Northwest Adventists immediately jumped into action to provide support. Special offerings were collected throughout the Northwest. During the months of November and December 2018, more than $481,000 was collected with more donations expected through January.

WWU Seeks to Become a Blue Zone

Walla Walla University (WWU) has undertaken an initiative to drive economic transformation and economic vitality in the Walla Walla Valley. The program, led by the WWU Center for Humanitarian Engagement, recently held a community info session outlining how to bring about these changes by becoming a Blue Zone community.

Adventist Farmers Gather in Gladstone

Several hundred Seventh-day Adventist farmers from around North America and beyond gathered Jan. 15-19 at the Holden Convention Center in Gladstone, Ore., for the Adventist Agricultural Association (AGA) convention. The AGA provides a network to support, share and encourage fellow Adventists in agricultural pursuits with tools and know-how backed by science, counsel and Scripture. Find more at adventistag.org.
